

1 of rights is the most fundamental and basic of all the 2 articles in our Constitution because it is the foundation
3 upon which the superstructure of government rests, and 4 we must be responsive to the changing needs in our 5 society else there would be no need to meet in a
6 Constitutional Convention for revision and reform, and I
7 say to you again, a nation of affluence, with chronically 8 high unemployment, continuing of a substantial portion of 9 our population, with inadequate preparation made for those 10 who reach the ages of forty, fifty, and sixty, for 11 the lack of the kind of training in our schools that will 12 prepare our young people for this new technological 13 age.

14 We need a mandate to the state to get busy.
15 This state has prior to this time responded only to 16 crisis and it has been government by crisis, and we 17 call for the courage and the foresight of our state in 18 preventing the catastrophe which is ahead, if we will 19 but see it.

20 I will be glad to answer any questions.

21 THE CHAIRMAN: Are there any questions of the
